Foreword

This volume is an updated version of Chinese Periodicals in the Library of Congress, compiled by the Chinese and Korean Section, Asian Division, and published by the Library of Congress in 1978. The earlier version listed more than 6,400 titles of Chinese periodicals in the Chinese Collection published during the period from 1868 to 1975. The present work records more than 8,000 Chinese periodical titles in the collection published from 1868 to 1986.

The present volume has been compiled in response to demands for recent information about the Library's holdings of Chinese periodicals, particularly those titles published in China since the conclusion of the Cultural Revolution in 1976. In the decade since that time, the Chinese publishing industry has experienced a rapid and vigorous resurgence, with the number of periodicals published increasing from a few hundred titles in the mid-1970s to some 4,000 titles in 1984, as reported in the People's Republic of China Yearbook, 1985. Periodicals published in China during this period constitute a large percentage of the 1,600 new titles listed in this updated version.

Like its predecessor, this volume includes Chinese periodicals covering all subjects relating to the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, and technology; it excludes Chinese legal serials in the custody of the Far Eastern Law Division of the Law Library of the Library of Congress, as well as periodicals in specialized fields of technical agriculture and clinical medicine which are held in the National Agricultural Library and the National Library of Medicine, respectively. However, general periodicals in agriculture and medicine may be listed in this volume. Also not listed are the holdings of some 400 periodicals on microfilm or microfiche that are in the Chinese Collection.

As in the earlier edition, a description of the entry format and instructions on how to use the bibliography appear in the Explanatory Notes prepared by the compilers. An added feature of this edition is that the location and call numbers of the serials are given.

Comments and suggestions on the bibliography will be greatly welcomed and will be used as the basis for future revisions and improvements.

Explanatory Notes

Transcription and Arrangement

In accordance with the common practice of most U.S. libraries, entries are arranged in alphabetical order with titles romanized according to the modified Wade-Giles system adopted by the American Library Association. Chinese characters are presented in traditional form for consistency. The romanized title is followed by the title from the title page of the journal. When a title in a Western language appears in the original publication, it is included in the entry, followed by a cross-reference.

Serials with the same title are distinguished by place of publication or, if the place is the same, by date of publication.

In alphabetizing, the definite or indefinite article beginning a Western title is disregarded, but is taken into account when it occurs elsewhere in the title.

For a serial that appears under a different title but continues the numbering of its predecessor, holdings are listed under the new title, and a cross-reference from the old title is included. For a title superseded by another title, holdings are listed under the superseded title.

Issuing Body

The name of the issuing body is romanized. If the name of the issuing body is not known, the name of the editing body is given.

Place of Publication

For well-known places, the conventional form is used, e.g., Peking, Shanghai, Taipei.

The names of other places are given in Wade-Giles romanization, and the provincial location is identified, e.g., Wu-kung, Shensi; T'ai-chung, Taiwan. For some periodicals the place of publication and/or the issuing body are not known.

Periodicity

Chinese publishers frequently do not indicate periodicity in the journal themselves. Or, they may make changes in the periodicity of the journal during a given year without notice. When this occurs, frequency data are omitted.

Location Information

If the serial is cataloged the call number and shelf number are given, if the serial is not cataloged the shelf number alone is provided.
